

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for secure distribution of digital content, the method including the steps of dividing a unit of digital content into at least first and second portions, storing the first portion on a first computerized apparatus, digitally watermarking the second portion, and combining the first portion and the digitally watermarked second portion, thereby forming a watermarked version of the digital content.